Avani appoints Nicolette Maury CEO

Avani is delighted to announce the appointment of Nicolette Maury as Chief Executive Officer to propel further growth and expansion of the company's presence across Australia and internationally.

Nicolette brings more than 20 years of global experience in leadership positions to establish new ventures and accelerate the strategic growth of high-growth companies. Her appointment as CEO of Avani is effective on 1 May 2023.

Prior to Avani, Nicolette was Head of European Product Transformation at Santander Group (including leading Santander's European ESG strategy and roadmap) and CEO of Santander-backed Fintech Asto. She also led the Australian growth of QuickBooks online as Managing Director of Intuit Australia, and undertook various roles at eBay Australia and The Boston Consulting Group.

Commenting on her appointment, Nicolette Maury said, "I am honoured to lead Avani through its next phase of growth to reduce carbon emissions across the built environment in Australia and internationally.

Companies around the globe must speed up climate-change practices, and we know it can be done through innovative technologies. Avani's products provide an exceptional solution, and it is incredible to be a part of the positive change that they bring to our environment and community."

Paul Dearlove, Co-Founder of Avani said, "We are excited to welcome Nicolette and are confident that under her leadership the company will accelerate its growth. Our solutions are assisting real estate owners, managers, and occupiers to create a sustainable and decarbonised future for their real estate portfolios."

Avani offers a market-leading integrated systems platform (ISP) that helps reduce the environmental impact of commercial real estate. The Avani platform connects with and provides instruction to any digital device within new and existing buildings.

Avani's technology is currently deployed in more than 250 buildings across Australia and New Zealand. Clients include leading owners and occupiers such as ISPT, HOYTS and ALDI.
